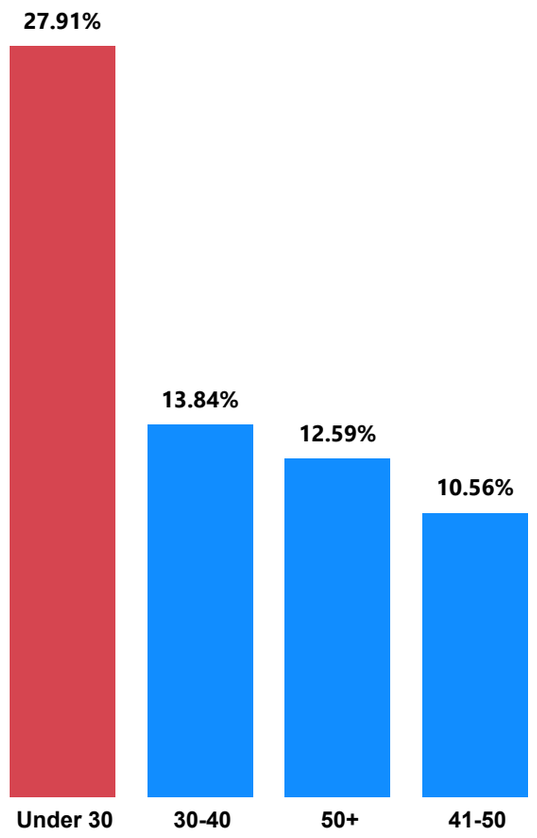
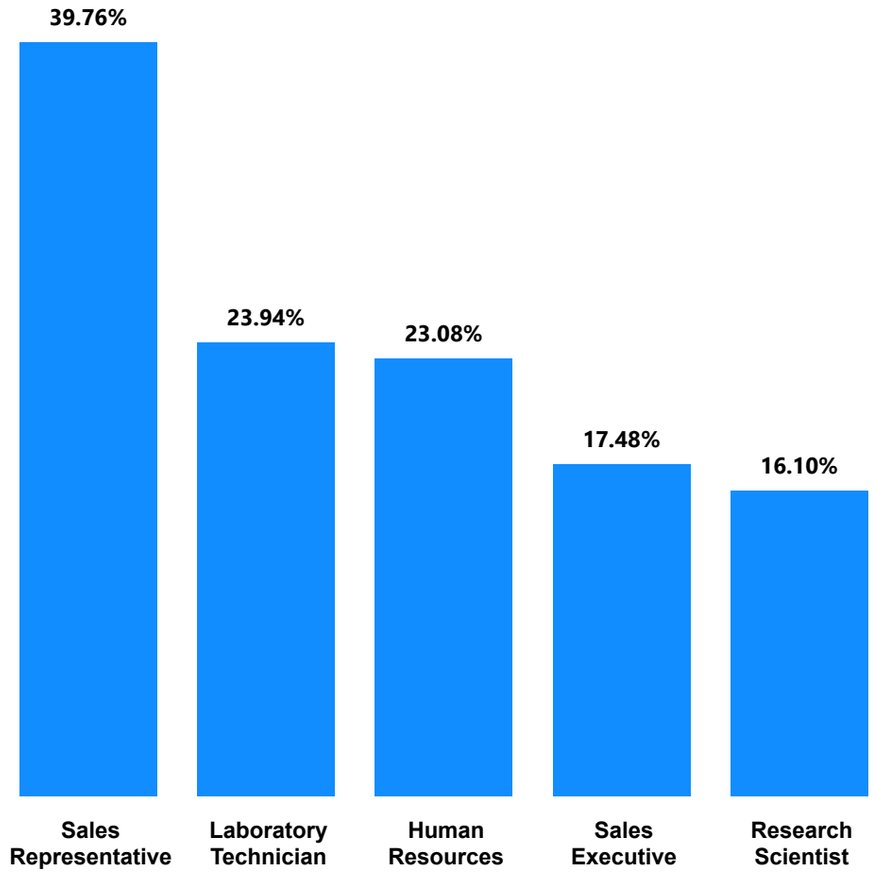
Employee Attrition Overview

Total Employees	Employees Left	Attrition Rate
1470	237	16.12%

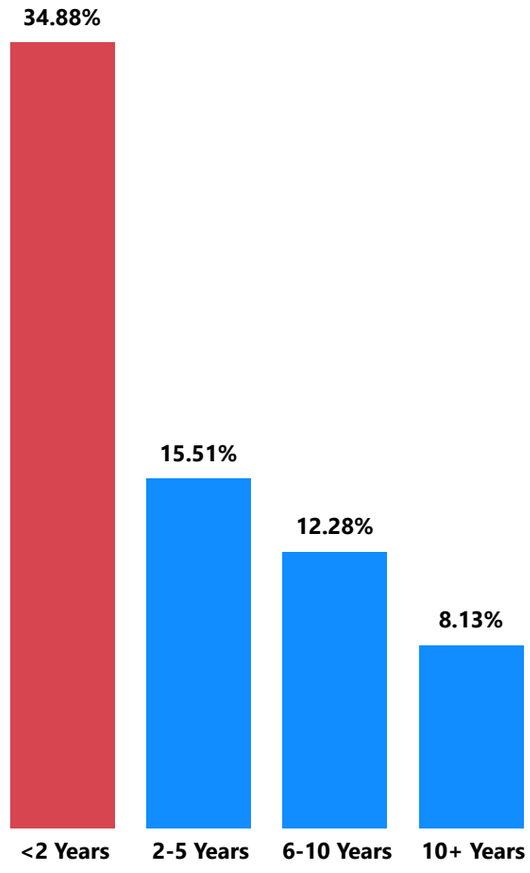
Younger Employees Have the Highest Attrition



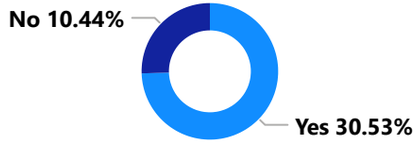
Sales Representatives Show the Highest Attrition



New Employees (<2 Years) Are Most at Risk



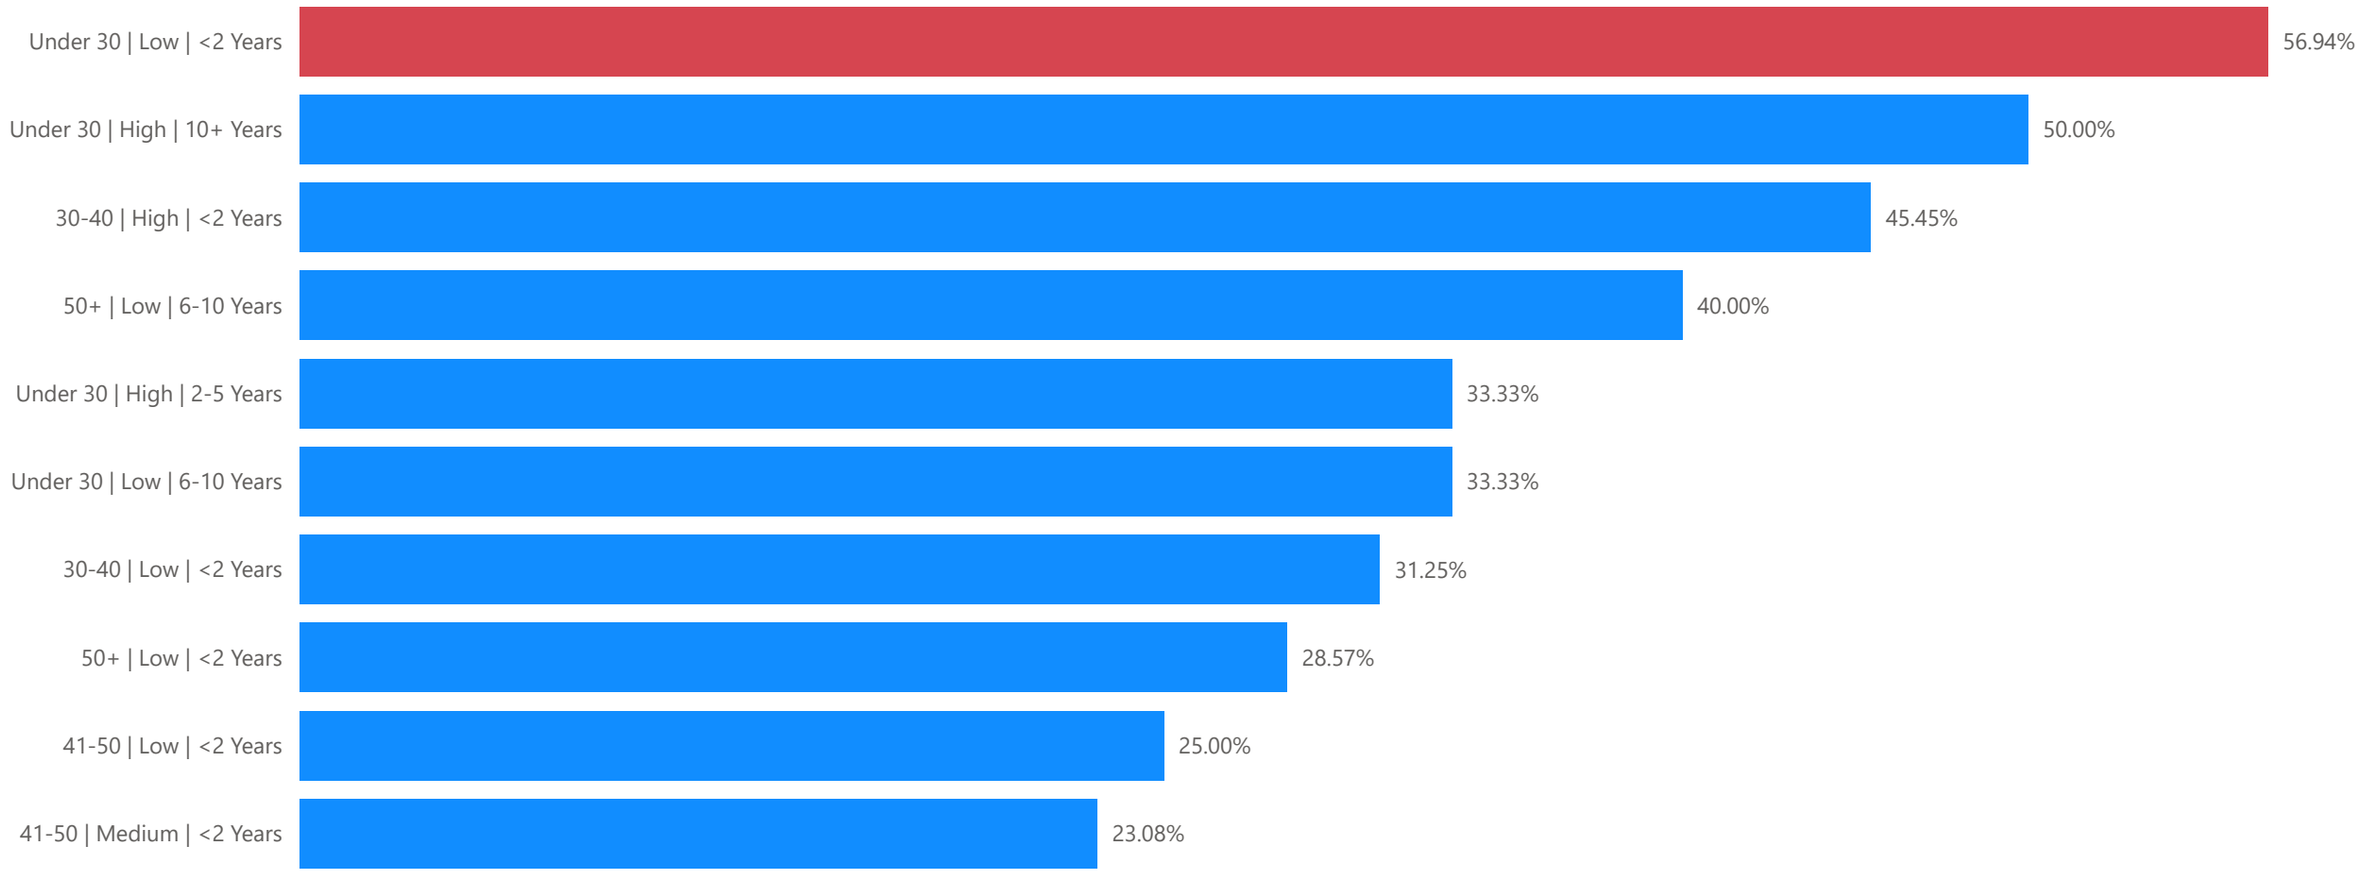
Overtime Significantly Increases Attrition



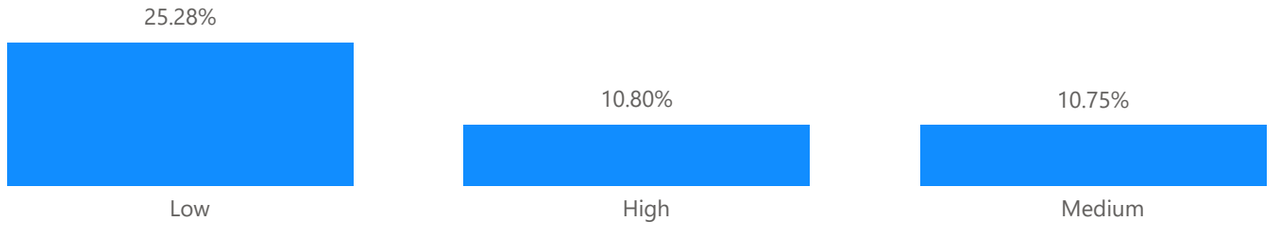
Insight:

- Employees under 30 show highest attrition
- Sales Representatives have highest attrition
- New employees (<2 years) are most at risk
- Overtime significantly increases attrition

Young, Low-Income, Early-Tenure Employees Drive Highest Attrition



Low-Income Employees Have Higher Attrition



Insight:

- Employees under 30 with low income and <2 years tenure have the highest attrition (~56%)
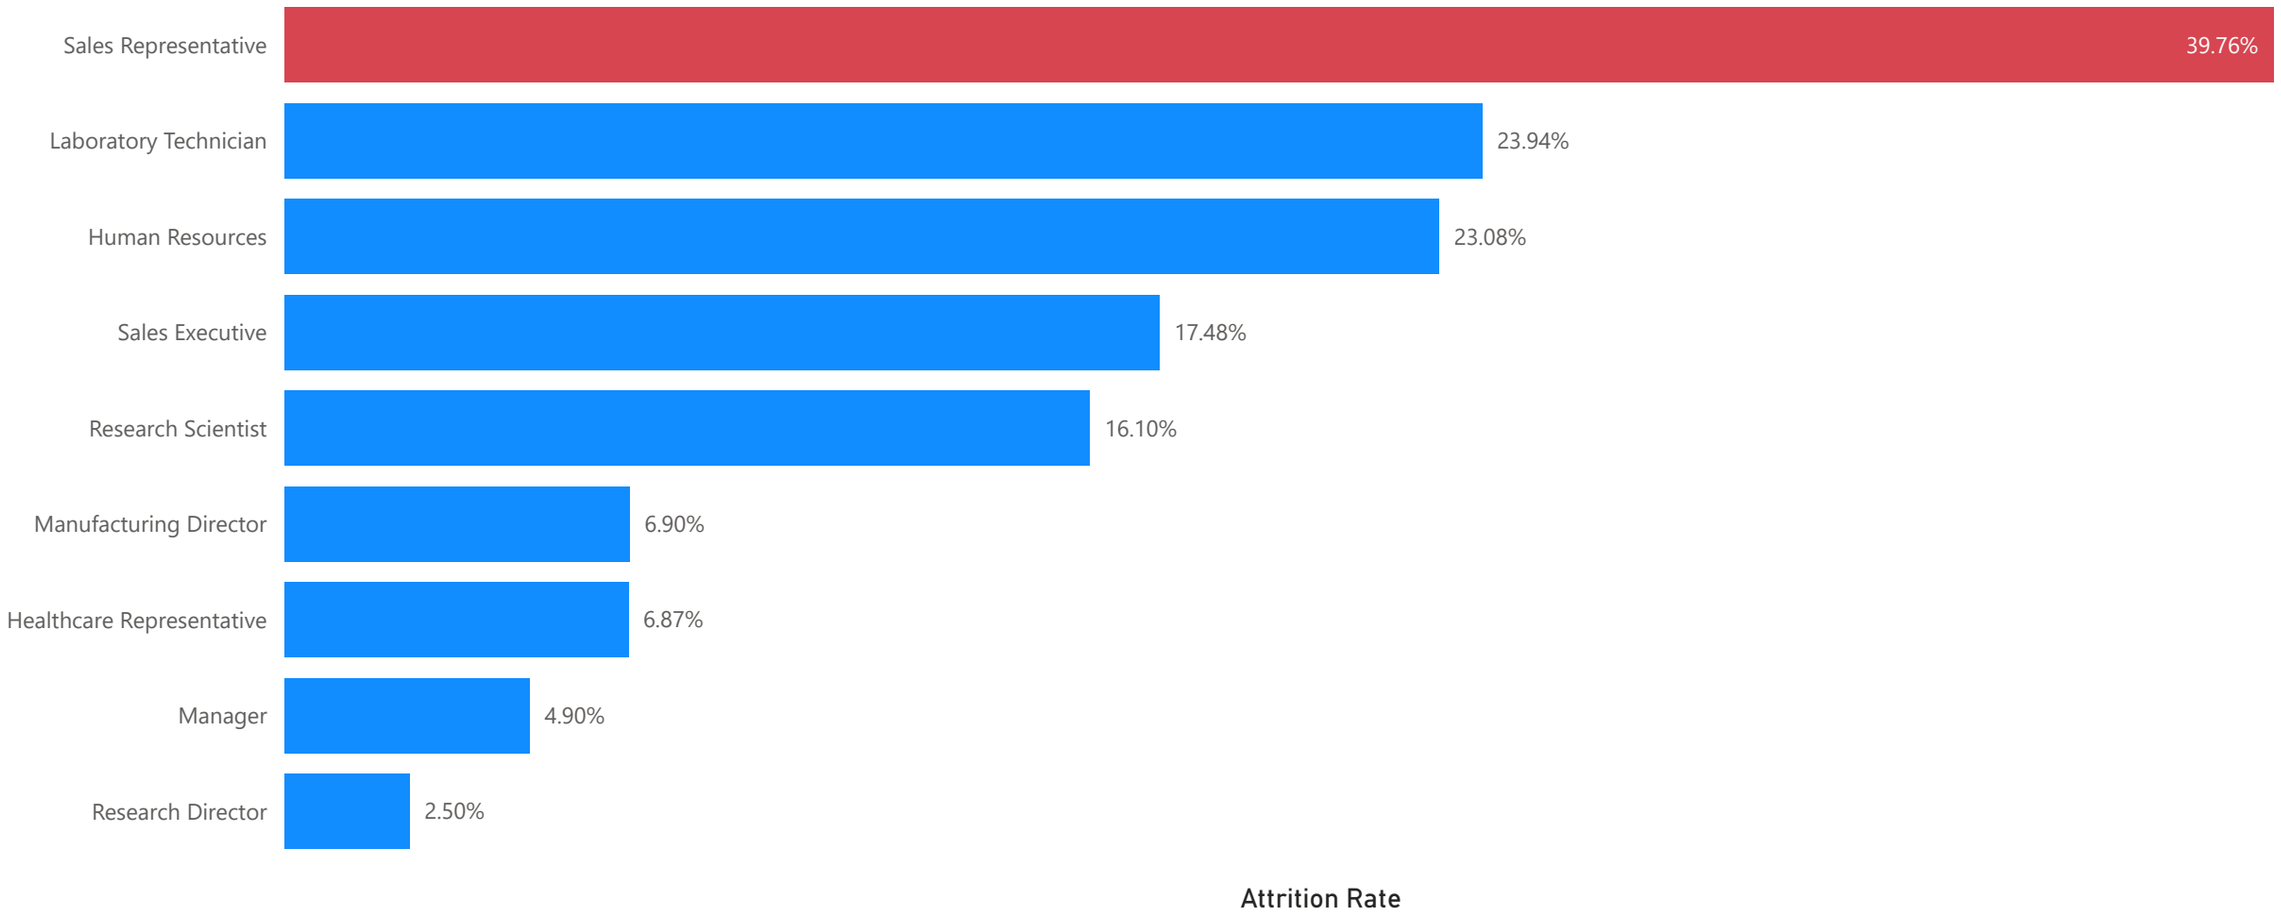
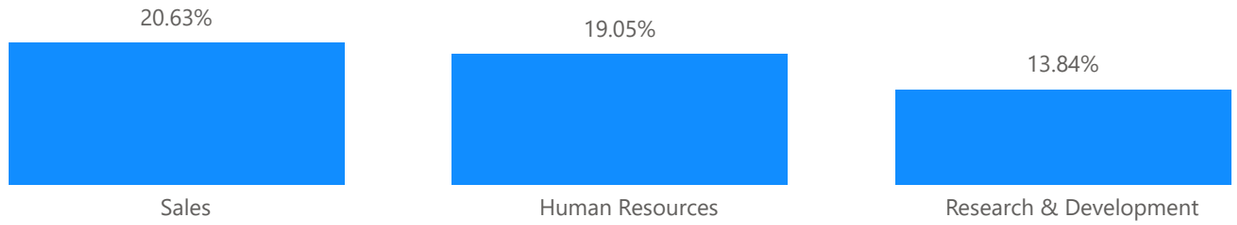
- This suggests early-career compensation and onboarding experience are key drivers
- Retention efforts should focus on improving salary structure and early employee experience

Roles Driving the Highest Attrition



Sales Department Shows Highest Attrition



Insight :

- Sales Representatives show the highest attrition (~40%)
- Attrition is concentrated in customer-facing roles
- Sales department shows the highest overall attrition
- Suggests workload pressure and performance expectations as key drivers

Overtime Significantly Increases Attrition Risk

Employees working overtime are 3x more likely to leave

Lower Job Satisfaction Leads to Higher Attrition

1 = Lowest satisfaction, 4 = Highest satisfaction

Work-Life Balance Shows Moderate Impact on Attrition

1 = Lowest Work-Life Balance, 4 = Highest Work-Life Balance

Insight:

- Employees working overtime are ~3x more likely to leave (30% vs 10%)
- Low job satisfaction strongly increases attrition risk
- Work-life balance shows moderate but noticeable impact
- Indicates workload and employee experience are primary drivers of turnover